Robert Gertsch, 2018

Fred (Fritz) Gertsch Sr. and grandson
Robert Gertsch, late 1940s

Shattuck Dairy wagon

Robert Gertsch: In 1898, Robert's grandfather, Fritz Sr., was the third Gertsch brother to come to Garden Home from Switzerland. He worked for a dairy on Vermont east of Oleson Road, possibly the large Hoffman Balmer dairy. After working to develop some savings, Fritz purchased property across Oleson Road from his brother Christian's property, and began working with Christian at the Shattuck Dairy. Fritz, Sr. married Rosa Nuelerhoser, thought to be from Switzerland, and had a son Fritz, Jr. who married Olive Philena Wolfe.

Robert and Peter Albert Gertsch were born to Fritz Jr. and Olive Philena Wolfe. Olive Philena Wolfe was born to Edna Oleson, a daughter of Ole Oleson who owned many acres in this area of Garden Home. Ole and his wife Polly Philena Patton had eight children, one son and seven daughters. Robert remembers his father Fritz Jr. as a great story-teller, usually with himself as the central figure, embellishing the stories from time to time. Read more on the website: Oleson families.

Grandfather Fritz Sr. had barrels in his basement where he made hard cider, wine and possibly other alcohol drinks during Prohibition. "He liked to have a little nip now and then." Fritz Sr. was always able to get good quality whiskey during this period. Robert's mother, Olive Philena, used to say "Bing Crosby music is not allowed" because Bing had been arrested for some alcohol possession and she thought he was a bad influence on children.

Nancy Donner: Nancy and William (Bill) Donner moved to the Garden Home area in 1967 when Bill was transferred with the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers from Walla Walla, Washington. Their large home at SW 62nd and SW Garden Home Road accommodated their five children. The home is just inside the Multnomah County line so their children attended Smith Elementary, Jackson Middle School and Wilson High School.

The Donner home was a voting precinct in the early days, down in the basement. They also hosted the Corp of Engineers' annual picnic in the summertime. With their one acre, they had a volley ball court for lots of fun.

Nancy fondly recalls the Sunday afternoon activity to go for a ride and visit the relatives, all unannounced ahead of time. Social times were spent playing Canasta, Scrabble or checkers. Doors were not locked and fences did not appear until the 1970s or so.

Bruce Koester, 2018

Closely planted Sequoias by the TV Water District tank on SW Garden Home Rd

Bruce Koester: Bruce has lived in his grandmother's home near 62nd and Garden Home Road most of his life. The home was built in 1926 and his grandmother Augusta Matrix Hosner purchased the property in 1927 for $2,500 from Mr. Sabel who owned much of the property in that area. Bruce's father, Otto Koester, came from Germany and married Augusta's daughter, Elizabeth in 1928. Both parents died in 1979 and are buried at Crescent Grove Cemetery on Greenburg Road.

The original garage for the Koester property was located east of the house, where the huge 1.75 million gallon Tualatin Valley Water District's water tank now stands. This earthquake-resistant tank was installed in 2013. It replaced the two aging 500,000 gallon tanks which were developed in 1952. A row of about 20 very tall sequoia trees delineate the property line from the Koesters; the tiny saplings were planted about a yard apart in 1953. Mr. Sabel had an auto repair business at this location prior to the water tanks.

Whitney's Cannery, 1950

Old Market Pub, 2017

Virginia Vanture presented our February program on the beginnings of the Cooperative Cannery in Garden Home, 1944 (now the Old Market Pub). The Cannery responded to the war time rationing, food going to the military and Victory Gardens; in addition to the concern after the Great Depression to preserve food for one's family. Garden Home's large platted lots and fruit trees provided an abundance of produce.
